

The unique sound of award-winning composer, conductor, and multi-instrumentalist Alba S. Torremocha blends contemporary instrumental textures and effortless melodies to create vibrant and compelling musical atmospheres.

Coming from a highly-refined background in classical composition and orchestration, she studied Violin, Composition and Conducting in Europe. She graduated from the prestigious Musikene Conservatoire (Spain) as the valedictorian of her class, and later graduated with honors from New York University with a masters in Film Scoring. She has been honored by Rotary International with the 'Young Citizen' Award, and she's a recipient of the Billy Joel Scholarship and the Elmer Bernstein Award. In 2016, she won the Residency of the NYU Symphony.

Alba bridges her work in the film industry with her research in psychoacoustics, a field she brings to life through her app, Willowave.
